

Anton Levy Named to 2021 Forbes' Midas List of Top Tech Investors for Seventh Consecutive Year

Anton Levy, Co-President, Managing Director and Global Head of Technology investing at General Atlantic, was named #45 of 100 to Forbes' Midas List of Top Tech Investors for 2021. This is the seventh consecutive year that Anton has been named to the Midas List.

To qualify, investors are ranked by their portfolio companies that have gone public or been acquired for at least $200 million over the past five years, or that have at least doubled their private valuation since initial investment to $400 million or more over the same period. Forbes and TrueBridge put a premium on liquid exits over unrealized returns, as well as large multiples on money invested for early-stage investors or large sums of cash returned for growth-stage specialists. (Or for top Midas investors: both.) A data-driven list, the Midas List is produced from a combination of public data sources and the submissions of hundreds of investment partners across dozens of firms each year.
