

Caroline Woodworth Named to Private Equity International's Future 40 List

Caroline Woodworth, Managing Director on General Atlantic's financial services team in EMEA, has been named to Private Equity International's Future 40 list. Caroline was recognized for her role in growing GA's financial services team across Europe, her investment track record, which includes leading GA's recent investment in Partners Capital, and her work championing the advancement of women within the financial services industry. Caroline also played an integral role in GA's recent acquisition of Actis.

The annual Future 40 list recognizes individuals under the age of 40 considered to be rising stars, future leaders, and innovators in the private equity industry. Chosen by PEI's editorial team, the list is formed from industry nominations with the final 40 selected based on their career trajectory and predicted influence on the industry in years to come.
